

Dear Birthparent,

We know you are in the midst of making one of the hardest decisions of your life. It takes a strong person to be able to trust someone to care and nurture a child that means so much to you. The choice of adoption is giving a couple the greatest gift on Earth. I hope that you consider us as the receiver of your wonderful gift.

We grew up in a small rural area in southern Minnesota. After graduation together we went our separate ways. When Heather graduated from college, with a degree in Dairy Herd Science, she returned home to work for a local dairy farmer. That farm happened to neighbor the farm Jason worked on and our paths crossed again, fate, I believe. After dating for a year and a half, we were married in front of all of our family and friends. We have been married six years now and have come across and dealt with multiple infertility problems. That has not detoured us from wanting children. We would love to adopt a child to share our love and home with.

A little bit about Jason. He is truly a country boy. He loves to tinker with trucks and tractors. He now works along side his dad for a local privately owned business. He spends his free time with his family as much as possible. He grew up with two sisters and twin brothers. His grandparents, aunts, and uncles have always been a big part of his life. He loves camping, playing with his niece and nephews, and playing games. He can't wait to enjoy doing everything he has done with his dad, with his own children. He will be a very caring, loving father.

What about Heather. She has a heart of gold and can't wait to share it with a child. She has always wanted children to be a part of her life. She now works at a local hospital as a secretary. Family has always come first in her life. She comes from a large family; growing up with four brothers and one sister. A majority of her siblings are married and have children. Heather spends whatever free time she has on her parent's farm, scrap-booking, sewing, and playing with their two cats: Scratch and Sniff.

Our beautiful two story house is located in a small rural town. We live right next to a beautiful park and down the street from the public pool. The town also has a small theatre, library, and many other things for children to do. Most of our family is within a thirty mile radius and can't wait for an addition to the family.

We can't wait to share our love with a child. Thank you for taking the time to read this and considering us for the adoption of your child. We are excited about the road ahead and hope you will consider taking the journey with us.

Sincerely,

Heather and Jason
